Handwriting exercises engage the brain in a way that calms and directs children to focus differently. Children in their sensitive period for writing trace over shaded numbers, letters and words daily with great awareness and joy. They use colorful markers and pencils. They practice and perfect their skills with this simple, sequenced method. It is effective, fun and relates back to class work. The Beautiful Handwriting Method materials were developed in Montessori classrooms with teachers and students over 20 years ago. The Teacher Handbook describes the method and how to use the materials.

First period lesson: The teacher demonstrates tracing the letter or number starting on the black dot. Children trace the shaded numbers, letters and words. They use colorful thin and thick markers, and pencils.
Second period lesson: Teachers observe children working and give guidance only when needed. Children copy the tracer sheets.
Third Period Lesson: Children use correct formation on all they write. They compose their own words, sentences and stories.
